THE LIVER.

Alcott & Link,

Some influential capitalists are inquiring into the practicability of establishing a line of fast mail steamers between Cincin nati and New Orleans, the boats to be of capacity for about 800 tons of freight and 150 passengers. There is no reason why such a line should not pay. Before the war there were many lines of packets running to the Crescent City, among them one or two each from Louisville, Cincinnati, Nashville, St. Louis and this city. They paid then and could be made to pay now, notwithstanding the close competition of the railroads. We believe it is worth while trying the venture and that the people in all the river towns would patronize such a line liberally.
